Annual tourney reduces even mighty to mortals

By DAVID LELAND

YES FOLKS, it's that time of year again. The point when otherwise courageous men shudder at the thought of teeing off in front of the multitudes during the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Witness the wavering voice of Oakland A's slugging first baseman Mark McGwire, during a recent AT&T press conference at the California Country Club in South San Francisco.

"There's nothing like it. I can play (baseball) in front of thousands, but I can't hit a golf ball in front of a hundred," said McGwire, who demonstrated his driving ability to the press corps by launching a ball almost 400 yards. "People don't realize how hard it is with all those eyes on you."

What? Could it be that AT&T golf tournament has the ability to transform sports icons into mere mortals.

"I'll tell you how nervous I get," said Hall-of-Famer Willie "Stretch" McCovey, who now drives a black Lexus with a license plate emblazoned "Mac 44." "The first year I played I withdrew the night before."

Why then are 180 amateurs from worldwide lining up to take part in the tourney with the 180 professionals, who are competing for a record $1.1 million purse?

Notoriety...boredom...competition...the thrill of having the daylight scared out of them.

To be sure there is no simple answer. But one

Poppy Hills offers no concessions to youth at AT&T

By DAVID LELAND

WHAT WOULD Bing Crosby think of the idea that this year some of the concessions at the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am will be taken over by a Los Angeles-based caterer, instead of his beloved Carmel Youth Center volunteers?

Chances are, the famed crooner and youth center founder, would understand that Poppy Hills, which has replaced Cypress Point Club in the AT&T, is in business to turn a profit for its membership.

That's the bottom line.

"We have a fiduciary responsibility to the Northern California Golf Association (NCGA)," said

'We have a fiduciary responsibility to the Northern California Golf Association (NCGA). We have to at least clear the same revenue as if we were not holding the tournament.'

— Kevin Orona

— Poppy Hills

Kevin Orona, head of golf operations for Poppy Hills, referring to the 105,000-member regional organization of about 300 clubs. "We have to at least clear the same revenue as if we were not holding the tournament."

Poppy Hills will retain a percentage of the profits generated by food sales from Hole-In-One Sports Caterers, a subsidiary of Garden Grove-based Mastroianni Family Enterprises, Orona said.

Nevertheless, tournament-goers, during the past 30 years, have become quite used to purchasing their hot dogs and coffee from one of the nine Bingmobiles strategically located around the courses involved.

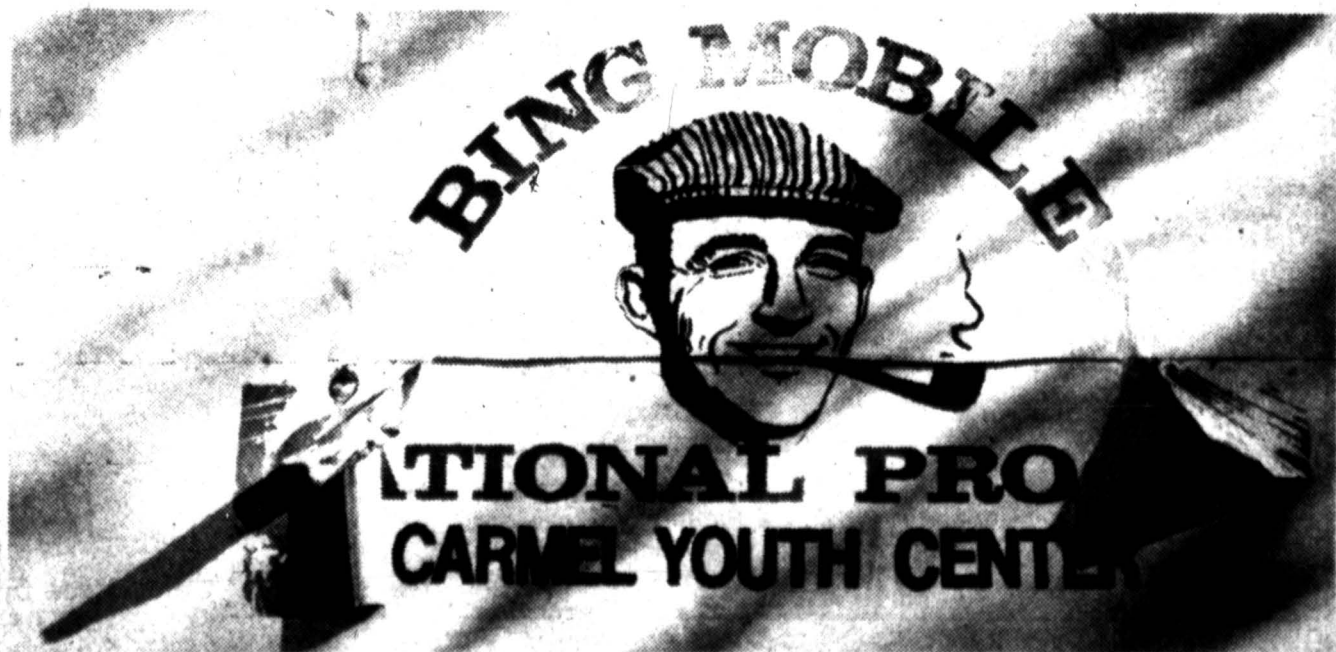

"I don't think they (NCGA) realize the history the youth center has with food concessions (at the AT&T)," said Ron Faia, youth center board president, adding that losing Poppy Hills will likely mean a loss of about $10,000 to the center.

The Carmel Youth Center will continue to provide concessions at Pebble Beach Golf Links and Spyglass Hill Golf Course, which are both owned by the Pebble Beach Co.

"The Pebble Beach Co. has been very generous through the years and allowed us to use our trailers (Bingmobiles)," Faia said. "If they decided otherwise, we would be in major trouble."

A FAMILIAR sight for some 30 years around the AT&T, Bingmobiles will only service a portion of the concessions at this year's tournament.

Wasting our money

Dear Editor:

I cannot believe that the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea with 3,775 people (1990 census), want the Murphy House to be placed on two valuable lots on Lincoln Street between Fifth and Sixth streets.

It is just plain (ugly)? Just because it is old doesn't make it a showplace for Carmel. If you had visitors the last place you would show them before they left town would be the Murphy House. We deserve something better than that.

First the two lots set aside for that use could be better used for other things at the value of some $600,000 to $1 million. We are wasting money.

Secondly the $100,000 spending to put the Murphy House in shape to use is ridiculous.

Thirdly the $300,000 to $350,000 for underground public washroom and toilets are way out of line.

Spending that much money for that use is a crime (unless money grows on trees), especially when our streets need repairing very badly and to keep the streets swept more often with our new leased sweeper and trimming the dead limbs all over town.

Carmel-by-the-Sea need parking for visitors — like parking garages — worse than anything right now and the parking fees in due time should pay for the garages. Where Hayward Lumber used to be, which is now a park, should be the first garage built and the second and third garages should be in the two locations by Sunset Center and the fourth garage should be where the Murphy House is now. This would help our visitors find parking so they can spend more money to help with our taxes.

The only thing of value I can see for the Murphy House would be a Scout Meeting House and move it down to the Swamp Area, the Hodges property, south of the Carmel Mission, which the city paid too much for and is not in the city limits.

One thing we must all remember is that good times do not last forever and at present the business community taxes are covering most of our taxes that keep the city going. We must do everything possible to help the business community survive. Don't kill the Golden Goose.

Give the business community freedom, as without it our taxes will kill each of us. They could be in for some rough times.

Building may slow to trickle because of depleted water

By DAVID LELAND

FACED WITH dwindling water supplies during this fifth drought year, Carmel may have depleted its water reserve and its ability to continue building.

With that in mind, it will be up to the Carmel City Council at its upcoming meeting to develop policy guidelines to be used for accepting new building applications.

Council to hear recommendations on area transportation

THE CARMEL City Council will hear 16 transportation recommendations from the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) during this week's meeting.

The non-action item will feature transportation-control measures contained in a report by AMBAG and the Monterey Bay Unified Pollution Control District aimed at reducing air pollution on the peninsula.

The council will meet in a special meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, in the council chambers at city hall on Monte Verde.

A special meeting has been scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, in the council chambers on Monte Verde Street.

With the exception of receiving a traffic study from the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG), the agenda is entirely carried over from the council's lengthy Jan. 8 meeting.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management

The California Clean Air Act requires that all "reasonably available" transportation control measures need to achieve ambient air quality standards be adopted, according to the report.

Those measures include employer-based trip reduction rules, management of parking supply and pricing, regional comprehensive transit improvements program for bus and rail, land development policies that support reductions in vehicle trips, and development policies to strengthen on-site transit access for new and existing land developments.

The report will be used by the agencies to determine which transportation measures will be recommended for adoption as part of the county's air quality management plan.

District "appears to have eliminated the water reserve and moved the city into a position where no new applications for water-consuming projects should be accepted," according to a staff report.

Applications concerning increased commercial floor area, new homes, subdivisions, new water-intensive businesses and remodels involving a net increase in plumbing fixtures would all be affected by the proposed resolution.

Existing applications would continue to be processed and all projects exempt from the guidelines would continue if the resolution is adopted.

The staff also recommends an extended time limit for projects that have been approved, but cannot come on line because of unavailable water.

"A solution would be to allow for one automatic extension for any permit with a limit of one year or less," the staff report said. "The extension would be equal to the original time limit or the length of the district's moratorium whichever is less."

IN OTHER matters the council will:

— Consider extending for six months a measure which allows traffic barriers at Third and Carpenter streets.

During the past five years, before the barriers were constructed last July, 18 accidents occurred at the intersection. Since the barriers have been in place there have been no accidents.

The city's traffic committee has recommended that the council explore keeping the barriers permanently.

— Consider amending its municipal grant policy to include a third category called special service grants, which would entail non-profit organizations operating in the city.

Currently grants are divided into two categories: cultural, which is given out by the cultural commission, and social, which falls under the recreation department.

The water district 'appears to have eliminated the water reserve and moved the city into a position where no new applications for water-consuming projects should be accepted.'

— City staff report

— Hear a resolution that would convert several 30-minute zones on the west side of Fourth at Mission to two-hour zones.

The five zones were converted to 30-minute slots from two-hours space last August, when the council added a number of green areas in the commercial district.

While the majority of businesses in the area favor extending the zones' time limits, several merchants have told the city the green areas are essential to their businesses.

City staff has recommended that the third green zone south of Fourth Avenue be converted to two-hour parking.

State rethinking plans for Monastery Beach parking

By DAVID LELAND

FACED WITH seemingly insurmountable opposition from county officials and residents, the state Department of Parks and Recreation is getting creative in its quest for off-Highway 1 parking at Monastery Beach.

Last week the department lost a bid for its $1.5 million parking lots, when the Monterey County Planning Commission unanimously rejected the application.

State plans call for a 35-space parking lot south of the beach and a 40-space lot on the north side of a grove of eucalyptus trees, with an access from Highway 1.

THE STATE Parks and Recreation Department, facing opposition for a 75-space parking lot at Monastery Beach (shown here) is contemplating purchasing Point

Park officials claim that the Carmel Area Land Use plan dictates that parking be moved off the shoulder on Highway 1 to facilitate safety, while area residents claim the situation is working just fine the way it is.

While vowing to appeal that matter to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and, if necessary, the state Coastal Commission, the parks department is now also exploring the purchase of Point Lobos Ranch for open space and parking, according to park officials.

"We believe it is all state park quality," said Mary Wright, district superintendent, referring to the 1,727-acre parcel located on the east side of Highway 1.

Wright said a parking lot could be built at the polo field site, with an undercrossing leading to Monastery Beach.

While Point Lobos Ranch owners currently have plans for a 240-room hotel complex on the land, last week they made it clear that they would sell the parcel to a non-developing buyer.

The land has been assessed at $24 million, according to a spokesman for Point Lobos Ranch. Bud Whisler, confirmed with The Pine Cone that the parks department has indeed been in contact with the partnership regarding purchase of the land.

While the polo field portion of Point Lobos Ranch is owned by the Hudson family, the partnership — Ted Richter, Paul Davis, and members of the Whisler and Hudson families — would not sell only a portion of the land, Whisler said.

Whisler added that he supports the idea of parking on the east side of Highway 1.

"If they (parks department) feel they have to have a parking lot, that would be the ideal place for it," he said.

THERE ARE, of course, several downsides which accompany moving parking to the east side of Highway 1.

For one, people would be further from their destination. That means SCUBA divers, who frequent the beach and support the park district's plan, would be forced to lug equipment through a planned-for undercrossing beneath the highway.

The park district's current plan includes a loading and unloading area for SCUBA divers' gear.

Wright said the alternate plan would tend to focus most of the use in one portion of the beach, rather than its full extension.

Also, it would be difficult to design the under-crossing in a way that could be kept dry during ultra-high tides, Wright said.

Combine those problems with the possibility of a portion of the land being in an archaeologically sensitive area and possibly in someone's view and the park district has its work cut out for it.

The district has no idea how much such a project would cost, but funding for the acquisition of Point Lobos Ranch could come from Proposition 117 monies combined with donations from the private sector, Wright said.

Wright added that, if the current project is not approved in a timely manner, that money could disappear.

"There is a danger that it will be diverted to another project that is ready to go," she said.

Meanwhile, Wright vowed to appeal the planning commission ruling.

Once the district is officially notified of the decision, officials have 10 days in which to appeal, according Carrie Wilkenson, planning commission secretary, adding that the notice will be sent out the week of Jan. 21.

Wright said her department was taken aback by what she considered a "reversal" by county officials regarding the project.

"We weren't prepared for the current belief that the situation is no longer a problem," said Wright, referring to a large number of tourists parking on the shoulder during weekends.

With safety of prime concern, Wright said her department is willing to play the villain in the scenario.

"It's difficult on a public relations level to drop the issue," she said.

But if the county continues to work against the proposal, Wright said her department may approach the idea of amending the LUP to take out the section demanding the parking be taken off the highway at Monastery Beach.

thing is certain: the feeling of fear is universal. "I've metabolized a lot of adrenaline in my life," said Adm. Alan Shepard, the first American to be launched into space, who later landed on the moon where he drove a golf ball 200 yards with a makeshift 6 iron. "But on that first hole that heart is really pumping."

Other notables taking part in the four-day event include Bryant Gumble, Clint Eastwood, Don Johnson, Huey Lewis, Tommy John, Julius Erving, Howard Keel and Randy Cross.

Oh, by the way, spectators just might see some of the best professional players on the Professional Golfers' Association tour.

This year Mark O'Meara will be defending his title for the third time, having also won in '89 and '85. Only two players have won as many times, Sam Snead and Jack Nicklaus — and only two players have won back-to-back, Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

O'Meara's win in 1990 came relatively easily, with Payne Stewart fading and Kenny Perry eventually taking home second prize. O'Meara played with his father, Robert.

O'Meara has two first-place finishes last year, with another victory at the H.E.B. Texas Open. He finished 10th on the PGA Tour money list for 1990 for a career high of $707,175.

Other past winners include Tom Kite, Johnny Miller, Hale Irwin, Steve Jones, John Cook and Ben Crenshaw.

'There's nothing like it. I can play (baseball) in front of thousands, but I can't hit a golf ball in front of a hundred. People don't realize how hard it is with all those eyes on you.'

— Mark McGwire
— Oakland A's

THE TALK of this year's AT&T most often centers on the addition of Poppy Hills Golf Course, which replaces Cypress Point Club.

Last year, the PGA faulted Cypress Point for its alleged discriminatory membership policy and disqualified the links from tournament play.

"While we are disappointed that we will not be able to play Cypress Point, we do extend our most sincere appreciation to the club and its members for allowing us to use their beautiful course without charge for so many years," said Bill Borland, president of the AT&T Pebble Beach Golf Foundation.

Poppy Hills has the distinction of being the only course in the United States to be developed by an amateur golf association.

In this case, the proprietor is the Northern California Golf Association, a regional organization of about 300 clubs that has more than 105,000 members.

The NCGA purchased the 165-acre parcel from the Pebble Beach Co. in 1977 for about $7,000 an acre, according to John Zoeller, chief executive officer with the NCGA.

"Poppy Hills is a very challenging course and in excellent condition for tournament play," said Lou Russo, tournament executive director, referring to the 6,850-yard course.

Designed by Robert Trent Jones II, the course takes players out for nine holes with the turn at the ninth in front of the clubhouse.

Of course play will still take place at Spyglass Hill Golf Course (6,810 yards) and The Pebble Beach Golf Links (6,799 yards).

Let's not forget that the main winner at the AT&T each year is charity, with $1 million contributed last year.

Since the tournament's inception as the Crosby in the 1940s, more than $10.5 million has gone toward helping the less fortunate.

Youth center No concessions

Last year, the youth center netted about $50,000 from food sold at the AT&T, Faia said, adding that the center's annual operating budget is between $75,000 and $100,000.

Faia said the revenue loss comes at a time when pennies are being pinched at the youth center.

"The future of the youth center relies on a steady flow of donations and grants from the community," Faia said, adding that many residents with grown children opt to donate money to causes such as the Harrison Memorial Library or Community Hospital, rather than youth-oriented organizations.

It should be noted that the Monterey Golf Foundation, which oversees disbursement of charity money for the AT&T, donated $50,000 to the youth center several years ago at the urging of Clint Eastwood, an ardent youth center supporter.

Last year, however, the youth center came up short-handed and received nothing from the foundation.

INDEED, IT appears likely that Poppy Hills officials and NCGA directors were unaware that their decision to hire an outside caterer would cause a brouhaha.

"I told them that locals won't be too excited about the kids losing out," Faia said.

Having made their move, however, they have become aware of the possible repercussions.

"We don't want to get a bad name in the community," said David White, Poppy Hills food and beverage manager, adding that the caterer will have five separate booths placed around the course.

Rudy Steadler, NCGA board president, said that the decision was entirely above board and that no contract existed between the AT&T and Cypress Point. The youth center took over concessions at Cypress Point two years ago when Fort Ord volunteers bowed out.

Faia that may be true, but Poppy Hills may end up spending more than it makes.

"They'll be in for a big surprise; I don't think it will be as lucrative as they think," said Faia, adding that after Thursday's star-studded pairings, business will likely drop off at the course as spectators follow the pack at the other two courses.

But Orona defended the course's decision. "We were free to make our own arrangements, which we did," he said.

Essentially the new caterer will market the same wares as those seen in the Bingmobiles, with the exception of two kinds of croissant sandwiches and beer, Orona said.

The Professional Golfers' Association has given the tournament permission this year to sell hard alcohol, which will be offered at all three sites.

Also, Hole-in-One is no stranger to catering golf matches, having recently operated at the Los Vegas Invitational.

Poppy Hills officials said that, if revenues prove to be healthy from the AT&T, his board will donate a portion of the proceeds to the Monterey Golf Foundation.

The Monterey Golf Foundation is the principal method of distributing money garnered from the AT&T to charity.

"Our recommendation would be to have that money earmarked for the youth center," Orona said.

While such a push would not guarantee the youth center receiving a donation, it is clear that Poppy Hills' heart is in the right place.

Said Steadler, "If we do all right on this thing we'll be more than happy to put some back into the community."

Title 21 issue dominates CVPOA meeting

By SUSAN BECK

ZONING ISSUES dominated the agenda at the Jan. 9 Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) meeting.

The length and complexity of Monterey County Zoning Ordinance Title 21 prompted the CVPOA to establish a three-member committee at their December meeting to better understand the document.

Revisions were made to Title 21 by the Citizens Advisory Committee, who were charged by the CVPOA board members agreed that understanding the revisions would provide an advantage for protection of land and homeowners in the valley at public hearings scheduled in the spring.

Williams went on to report that the San Carlos Ranch Environmental Impact Report (EIR) is up for approval at the Jan. 29 board of supervisors meeting.

The EIR covers water availability, air pollution, and traffic impacts. Williams said that the EIR will better determine the impacts of San Carlos developments on Carmel Valley and, "is a way to get at what their plans are."

Board member Bernardi reported on water management and resources options. She said that at the last board of supervisors meeting on Jan. 8, Walter Wong, head of the county Environmental Health Department, recommended an emergency ordinance to ban the drilling of new wells in the Carmel Valley aquifer, Seaside inland and ground water basin, Fort Ord, and Laguna Seca.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's EIR indicates that there is a shortage of available water. Based on the finding, an emergency ordinance was prepared for the board to recommend the banning of wells, said Bernardi.

Wong said that limited water supply was a current threat to the public's health, safety and welfare. The board postponed their decision until Jan. 22.

Bernardi said that public concern caused the delay. She said that there are many people who have an existing well that is either dry or about to be. These people would have no source of water if they could not drill another well on their property.

'The document is unbelievable. I certainly compliment the committee on what they have done. I take my hat off to them. Now, the question is, will the planning department go with it?'

— Roger Williams

Monterey County Board of Supervisors to organize and streamline the zoning ordinance. CVPOA board members Patricia Bernardi and Irene Crane-Franks are also members of the advisory committee.

After an extensive discussion on Title 21 revisions (see related story in this issue), board member Roger Williams said, "The document is unbelievable. I certainly compliment the committee on what they have done. I take my hat off to them. Now, the question is, will the planning department go with it?"

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are needed to deliver 280 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 25 routes, four of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up short-handed. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Residents jam supes' chambers to hear Title 21 report

By SUSAN BECK

COUNTY RESIDENTS crammed the Monterey County Board of Supervisors chambers Tuesday morning to see how their lives might be affected by anticipated revisions to Title 21 zoning ordinance.

The proposed changes were presented to the board by the Citizens Advisory Committee, which was established by supervisors last June. The Monterey County Planning Commission,

The planning commission 'works for the public at large, just as we do. I would not want to hamstring them. Hopefully, (this time they), will be faster.'

— Karin Strasser Kauffman

starting in 1988, made the first revisions to the zoning ordinance.

The decision by the board of supervisors to create an advisory committee came about after dissatisfied land and homeowners voiced an avalanche of complaints about the initial revisions made by the planning commission.

Three representatives from each of the county's five districts make up the advisory committee. The board instructed them to review all of the districts' area and general plans in addition to neighboring county regulations regarding land use and zoning.

Their task focused on inconsistencies and definitions, with the main objective being to revise all county area and general plans to coordinate with zoning, said Tim Handley, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

The committee's review resulted in numerous revisions to Title 21, said Handley, and now the ordinance is readable and "user-friendly." "It now serves the needs and expectations of the residents."

It took 3,000 hours to prepare the revised Title 21, said Handley, adding, "We believe it is far better than the one we started with. It expresses and meets the desires of the county's residents."

The Citizens Advisory Committee presented its additions and deletions for two hours during the meeting. Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas, chairman of the board, highly commended the committee for their endeavor as did the other board members.

The board gave the Monterey County Planning Commission until May to review the advisory committee's revisions and present its recommendations.

Second District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck advised that future public hearings on zoning be based on the advisory committee's revised Title 21, not on one "reworked again by the planning commission."

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said that she did not want to tell the planning commissioners how to do their job, but she recommended that they respect the work of the advisory committee.

She said that the planning commission, "works for the public at large, just as we do. I wouldn't want to hamstring them. Hopefully, (this time they) will be faster."

In his introduction to the board, Handley said that the advisory committee members were not professionals, "but we do live with and have lived with what the 'professional planners' have given us."

He said that the zoning ordinance was an unimaginable mess of uninterpretable and confusing rules and regulations. "The document this committee has drawn up does its best to do away with the inconsistencies."

Among the many changes made by the advisory committee was the deletion of a clause in the existing ordinance that states if it is not listed, it is prohibited. The committee strongly recommended that it should be the other way around: If it is not listed, it is allowed.

Senior-citizen unit regulations were changed to allow for an attached unit not to exceed 700 square feet, and a detached unit not to exceed 1,200 square feet. Caretakers no longer have to be employed exclusively in their quarters for purposes of continuous care.

The advisory committee unanimously agreed to support the process and consideration of certain applications of a minor or non-controversial nature at an administrative level, simplifying the way the permit is handled.

The permit was revised to reduce the time needed to process and expedite work flow and dispense with public hearings on certain types of developments, such as changing a regular window to a bay window.

This change would also decrease the time, materials and cost in processing certain discretionary permits.

Several changes were made to sections dealing with legal non-conforming uses. This is any use of land, building or land and building which was legally established but does not conform to existing land use regulations.

The committee deleted a section that states non-conforming use may not increase an already established use.

Also, new foundations on non-conforming buildings are allowed if the work does not exceed 50 percent of the appraised value of the building. Previously, the work could not exceed 25 percent. Another change was in a section defining termination procedures.

The first revision of the zoning ordinance states that initiation of termination requires 25 percent of the owners within 1,000 feet of the undesired property. The committee changed it so that 100 percent of the neighbors must be dissatisfied to petition for termination of a non-conforming property.

'We believe it is far better than the one we started with. It expresses and meets the desires of the county's residents.'

— Tim Handley

In addition, the person or agency, including the county, initiating the termination of a legal non-conforming use will be responsible for all legal costs to the owner of the property if the termination is overturned in a court of law.

Limited copies of the Monterey County Zoning Ordinance Title 21 are available at the Monterey County Planning Department, 240 Church St., Salinas.

FIRST PERSON

By Tina-Marie Glatt

A fish story

I HAVE a confession to make: Fish is my foe; I hate to eat fish. Uck. Disgusting. No can do. I'll have the Turf & Turf, instead, thank you very much.

There is something shameful about not becoming rapturous over the concept of a dead steaming slimy fish on your plate. No one will take your word that you can't stand the stuff.

People push fish on me all the time. I don't believe I have ever heard a more nightmarish term than "Trout Pate." As in, "You must try my Trout Pate." A nervous throat quiver kicks in immediately.

AS ONE who doesn't just not care for fish, but despises it, I made a very strange choice for a companion: A chef. And not just any chef, but a wondrous chef. A wondrous chef who innocently says, "You may have hated fish before, but you haven't had mine. Here, try a bite of my Trout Pate." arrgh....

I went to the Monterey Bay Aquarium with my boyfriend, the chef. Wrong move. He began salivating as soon as we entered.

"Mmm...Cuttlefish, I could stuff that, light sauce..."

At every single display, he announced how he would prepare the fish that was showcased. It was truly embarrassing.

He was mesmerized at the anchovy exhibit. His eyes glazed over as visions of Caesar salads danced in his head.

Needless to say, it looks like it will be a long while before we are invited back to the aquarium.

I PROMISED him a New Year's Resolution: 1991 will be the year I like fish.

I lied.

Of course, I've shown how clever I am, that I live in a place where the first melodious (odious?) words out of every waiter's mouth is a long recitation describing the fresh catch of the day.

I would be much better off living in some nice land-locked country where fish have nary a chance of survival, like the Kalahari Desert in Botswana.

I'VE RECENTLY had the privilege of getting to know Dr. Benjamin Spock, the baby doctor. He's a wonderful man; just extraordinary. However, my first time meeting him — in a seafood restaurant in Camden, Maine — couldn't have been worse.

I was meeting my boyfriend's family and the Spocks for the first time and of course, wanted to make a good impression. We arrived late to the table, and there, piled high at my place setting, was every kind of oceanic creature imaginable.

I felt like a character in a Stephen King novel. A room full of faces smiled expectantly, as they shared their treasures of the sea with me.

I forced one of each down my throat — swallowed it twice — and was satisfied that I'd given it my best shot.

However, turning back to my plate after making small talk with the person next to me, I saw it had silently been refilled.

Ben Spock, icon of the ages, smiled at me as he spooned additional fish water on my fish.

"Oh my dear," he admonished himself as he spooned, "please forgive me. I tell parents in my book to NEVER, never force children to eat anything...but really, this is just delicious.

"You must try this Trout Pate."

Arrgh...

Seniors program needs participants

IN SEPTEMBER 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Currently, the department has a full staff of volunteers, however, anyone wishing to be placed on an alternate list to fill in when another caller is unable to make it or is away on vacation, is encouraged to call for information.

Anyone living alone, whether concerned about their health or not, and all those seniors wishing to make new friends or just have the opportunity to talk with someone new each day is encouraged to participate in this program.

Telephone calls are made daily by a volunteer beginning at 9:30 a.m. No participant is ever restricted to their home; they need only contact the police department in advance if they plan to be away during the time the calls are placed to avoid any confusion. If someone fails to answer their telephone, a patrol unit is sent by to conduct a welfare check at the residence.

In addition to these daily telephone "visitations," social events are also planned periodically as well as home visitations upon request.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

Red Cross sets free blood pressure test

EVERY WEDNESDAY the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct free blood pressure testing.

The public can receive free testing from 2 to 4 p.m. every Wednesday at the chapter house, Dolores and Eighth in Carmel.

Planners want more info on General Store remodeling

THE OWNER OF the General Store/Forge in the Forest was rebuffed in his initial efforts to get an ambitious remodeling plan approved by the city of Carmel.

In a meeting Jan. 9, the Carmel Planning Commission denied a request by Daniel Glosser, proprietor of the popular Carmel restaurant, to relocate three on-site parking spaces at the restaurant, located at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Junipero Street, and at an adjacent lawyer's office, to a parking lot just south of the

With Commissioner Barbara Lysle absent, Commission chairperson Carla Ramsey and Commissioner Stephen Poohar provided the dissenting votes. The latter two didn't so much disapprove of the plan itself as they wanted to consider the entire project as a whole rather than in segments.

"The commissioners didn't want to see it done piecemeal, but wanted it done comprehensively," said Brian Roseth, city staff planner, in a phone interview.

Glosser's designer, Neal Owen Kruse, said he brought the parking proposal before the commission first at the planning department's recommendation.

Roseth concurred.

"We had to reduce it to a simple issue," said Roseth. "There were a number of different requests, and rather than dive into it as a whole, we thought we would isolate one of the components — parking."

Roseth said many of the other requests made by Glosser were contingent on what happened to the issue of parking.

"The Planning Commission review should begin with the most fundamental and broader issue, off-site parking, and work down to the detail-specific questions of design later," the staff report read.

"If the Planning Commission does not approve the request for off-site parking, none of the additional requests can go forward as currently proposed," it concluded.

Commissioner Brian Congleton motioned to continue the issue to the Feb. 13 planning commission meeting. Meanwhile the staff would restaurant. Since Glosser had also requested an increase in commercial floor area, he would have to provide two more spaces at the lot, for a total of five off-street spaces.

Although a majority of the commission approved of the request, on a 4-2 vote, the plan failed because such a request requires five votes to be approved.

have time to come up with findings supporting the parking space swap, as well as the other requests made by Glosser.

"There's quite a bit of work to do by the staff yet," conceded Roseth.

In addition to the parking issue, there are three other approvals required by the planning commission for the project, including:

A request to increase commercial floor area, including a bonus floor area for "design achievements."

A request to amend the use permit to allow a change in the ratio of indoor to outdoor seating, and a maximum occupancy based on number of persons, not seats.

A request for design changes including a new courtyard on the Junipero Street side; relocating an existing fireplace; additional trees and landscaping; creation of inter-block walkway merging the two properties in common ownership; new exterior lighting; new wrought iron gates at three locations; new canopy over outdoor seats; undergrounding two overhead lines; interior changes to existing structures and new enclosed spaces; and a mural along the north-facing portion of the parapet wall.

Glosser said he submitted the application "primarily because the county Health Department for over a year has been requiring us to do certain things that frankly cannot be accomplished within the enclosed areas we have."

"We have designed the additional area so it will leave the original landmark buildings undisturbed," Glosser said in his letter to the commission. "We are making every effort to keep a part of Carmel's history alive and well in a changing world."

Birth mothers group meets every month

A BIRTH mothers support group meets once a month at the Childrens Services Center in Monterey.

Birth mothers are women who have given their children up for adoption; the group allows these women to share their feelings with others, according to Teri Livingston, who has been a member of the 2-year-old group.

"There are a lot of women out there...and there's a lot of pain involved," she said. "This gives them a chance to talk about it. We're not a search group, but we have information on it."

The support group meets at 7 p.m. on the last Wednesday of each month at the center at 648 Pine Ave. in Pacific Grove. More information can be obtained by calling either Carol Bishop or Gayle Ward at Childrens Services Center of Monterey County, 649-3033.

Panetta warns of war's effects on nation's vulnerable economy

HOUSE BUDGET Committee Chairman Leon E. Panetta (D-Monterey), took the House floor during Jan. 11 debate on the Middle East crisis to remind Congress and the country of the economic and budgetary impact of American military action against Iraq.

"As we decide whether to maintain economic and diplomatic pressure on Saddam Hussein or go to war," he said, "we are also deciding the future of this country, whether the United States will continue to be the world's policeman or will exhaust every effort to build the kind of new world order that assures that other major powers face up to their responsibilities in the world of tomorrow."

Panetta noted that in the event of war, some 95 percent of the military effort would be carried by the U.S. armed services. Without significant contributions from other nations, he said, a similar proportion of the financial burden would also be borne by this country.

"The bitter reality," he said, "is that whether we decide on war or continued sanctions, we cannot do this alone. We simply cannot afford to be the world's sole policeman in the future and expect to have the resources to remain a great power in the 21st century."

"We are in a serious recession and are confronting record budget deficits," Panetta added.

"Our national security is not just a matter of flexing our military muscle; it also relates to the strength of our economy, to the extent of our resources, and to our capacity to meet needs within our own society."

"As the Soviet Union has learned through bitter experience, the essence of national security is both military and economic strength."

Panetta noted that the Administration has refused to provide Congress or the public with updated figures on the cost of Operation Desert Shield or the contributions being made by other countries.

"The Administration is asking the nation to pay a price but does not want to tell us what the price is," he said. "We need to know the full costs that are involved here — in human lives and in dollars."

Panetta pointed to an estimate of $30 billion in Fiscal Year 1991 costs made by the U.S. General Accounting Office if there is no war. Estimates of the costs of war range as high as $1 billion to $2 billion a day, he said.

"Further," he added, "this is not supposed to be our fight alone. The new world order today is more a slogan than a reality. Countries who will benefit the most from what we do in the Middle East and who can best provide troops and money are standing on the sidelines."

"They are full partners when it comes to competing with us on the economic front; they are out there beating us every day. But they are not full partners when it comes to the kind of military and dollar commitment that you need to confront this kind of crisis."

Panetta stated that of the $15 billion to $25 billion in pledges received from other countries, only $4.3 billion has been received.

"Obviously, there are important defense and diplomatic issues here," he said. "But it is also important for us to look at the future costs to this nation. If we go it alone, we will pay the price alone. If we work together with these other nations, we can build the kind of world order — the kind of partnership — that can take on Saddam Hussein or any other bully in the world."

Council to hold special study session

THE CARMEL City Council will hold a special meeting on Jan. 19 to set organizational goals for the coming year.

The study session will be held at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19 in Room 14-B in Sunset Center, east side of San Carlos between Eighth and Ninth avenues.

The session will be held to establish organizational goals and to undertake team-building exercises.

For more information call city hall at 624-2781.

'Village Affair' set for Jan. 21

CARMEL VALLEY's Village Affair will be held at the Los Laureles Lodge on Carmel Valley Road just before the village.

The Jan. 21 affair starts at 5:30 p.m. About 20 local restaurants, including Will's Fargo, The Ridge, Running Iron, and Casa Bella, will showcase their specialties, hors d'oeuvre style.

Seven local wineries will offer their finest and an etched wine glass will be given to all those attending.

Pat Duval is providing the entertainment and there will be a live and silent auction with 100 gifts to be sold to the highest bidder.

Cocktail attire is required. The cost per person is $25 and tickets are available at Los Laureles Lodge, Valley Lodge, and Robles Del Rio Lodge.

For more information about the Village Affair, call Peter Coakley at 659-2261.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

POLICE LOG

'Operation Parking Space'

MOST EVERYONE would agree that the lack of parking in Carmel is a big headache. However, two women, ages 45 and 50, might say it's a pain somewhere else.

According to police, the Carmel and Carmel Valley residents began having a verbal argument about one particularly precious space on Wednesday, Jan. 2 at approximately 3 p.m.

Apparently one of the women thought the other woman had stolen the parking space she was waiting for on San Carlos Street, south of Ocean Avenue. The accused vehemently disagreed and their insults soon escalated to minor blows.

A crowd began to gather before a passerby broke up the tussle. No winner was declared and the women left.

So while a war is brewing in the mideast over a depleted oil supply, "Operation Parking Space" is already well on its way in claiming some casualties here in Carmel.

'Viva la revolution!'

FIRST A brief history lesson about our European friends, the Basques:

The Basque region is in Northern Spain just bordering France, where nationalism runs strong among the people. In 1980 the provinces were granted regional autonomy; however some Basques are continuing to press for total independence from a resistant Spain.

Now for the news:

Casanova restaurant, located on Fifth Avenue between San Carlos and Mission, was the scene of some civil unrest on Friday, Jan. 4.

According to police, four Spanish patrons, eating dinner, were having a conversation about their country and discussing the conflict with the Basques. They asked about the flag hanging outside the restaurant and were told it was a Basque flag.

At 8:05 p.m., the diners left Casanova's, taking with them some matches, when at 8:10 p.m. a patron saw that the Basque flag was on fire.

The only damage done was to the torched flag. The suspects got away before police arrived.

Misdemeanor battery

PREPARING TO return home to Los Angeles on Monday, Jan. 31, after a short stay over the holidays in Carmel, a couple began to argue over who would handle the driving duties.

Obviously not agreeing, a struggle ensued to capture the car keys. The woman had possession of them, and in his eagerness to get to the keys, her boyfriend knocked her to the ground, resulting in the woman breaking her left forearm.

Occurring at noon, outside the Colonial Terrace Inn on San Antonio Street, the man was cited by police for misdemeanor battery. The couple have since returned to L.A.

ONCE AGAIN, BING GATHERS HIS FRIENDS

For the 20th year, professional golfers teamed with amateur players, at the invitation of Bing Crosby, started play today on the Monterey Peninsula in the 1966 National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship. Play will continue tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday for a new high purse of $104,500. The event is expected to draw 26,000 spectators.

This year's Crosby Clambake is the 25th anniversary of the event.

Bing's "gathering of friends" began at Rancho Santa Fe in 1937, was discontinued during the war years when Bing and his friends were entertaining at camps and selling war bonds, and has been held at Pebble Beach since 1946.

CARMEL RESTAURATEUR FACES TRIAL ON CHARGES OF LEAVING SIGN OUTSIDE
Christian Aranaudin will be brought to trial Jan. 31 by City Attorney George Brehmer on charges of repeatedly refusing to remove a sign outside his restaurant.

His French restaurant, the St. Tropez, is on Junipero at Sixth in Carmel.

The chalkboard violates city code; signs are not permitted outside businesses here according to Building Inspector Ron Warren.

Warren said Aranaudin was "invited over a year ago" to appear before the board, of which the building inspector is a member. Aranaudin kept the sign out during the past year, however, according to Warren, so the matter was turned over to the city attorney.

HUMANS ON THE LOOK-OUT FOR MIGRATING WHALES BY LAND AND BY SEA:

By Anne Papineau

Creatures whose predictable habits caused them to be hunted almost to extinction along the California coast, gray whales are still pursued by hordes of humans whose goal is only to observe, not harpoon.

The gray whale parade, which began in October and is presently at its peak, can be seen by land and by sea.

As many as 200 whales a day may pass this way, travelling in pods or groups of two to 10. The herd is believed to number 17,000, up from only 250 that survived overfishing in the first half of this century.

COAST & COUNTRY

By Barbara March

Civil disobedience

ON NOV. 29, 1990 an innocuous planning commission article in another Carmel Valley weekly reported approval of plans for remodeling and new additions to a home adjacent to Stonepine resort.

According to the weekly press, Stonepine owners Gordon and Noel Hentschel were given the OK to transform the just-under-1-acre "Sabu property" and various buildings into a residence for themselves and their six, going on seven, children.

There will be a 3,146-square-foot main residence, garage, 494-square-foot guesthouse, recreation room for the kids, swimming pool and tennis court.

Makes sense. The Hentschels own the property. Just a holler from Chateau Noel, it's a great fixer-upper. But don't let the facade fool you. This nondescript little stucco house has a checkered past.

Here's the rundown. The new chez Hentschel has run the gamut and at various times in recent history hosted: the Tularcitos School house in the '50s, the "So Help Me Hannah Laboratory," described as a poison oak remedy manufacturing plant, a shotgun loading enterprise, the Joan Baez "Institute for the Study of Non-Violence" in '65 and '66, a "Subud House" for the practice of Indonesian religion in the '70s and most recently a day care center.

Reflecting the times, the house has been a bellwether for our community. Locals have called it a "hobo stakeout," a "school for non-conformists," a "haven for irresponsible beatniks," and some observers have admitted it has housed "a few nuts." The patched and cracked walls are layered with the laughter of children, the tell-tale odor of chemicals and gunpowder, the peaceful thoughts and words of Thoreau and Gandhi and the muffled dance steps of the latihan, a series of spontaneous and ecstatic exercises practiced by members of the Subud religion.

Of all the groups which have congregated at the little stucco house none have raised the ire of the community as much as Joan Baez' "School for the Study of Non-Violence." Fears that a school advocating civil disobedience would disrupt the peace of the valley in the Vietnam era prompted a protracted battle between Baez, local valley residents and the board of supervisors. The school curriculum included the writings and teachings of Thoreau, Gandhi, Aldous Huxley, Fromm, Tolstoy and the Bible. A representative of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce was quoted: "Non-violence leads to more than non-violence. Young people should serve in the service like the rest of us did."

Another valleyite: "I do believe in freedom for all, but not at the expense of others."

Memorable words. Here we are, 25 years later, on the brink of another unpopular war. Sunday's anti-war rally in Monterey saw former Alaska Sen. Mike Gravel warning the crowd of 1,000 about the possibility of a draft. He advocated civil disobedience and protest movements, and said the American people should wake up.

Perhaps we should have paid more attention to the teachings of the "Institute for the Study of Non-Violence" and less to the location.

GATHERINGS

The prospect of war spawns a new type of social gathering. If your group has plans for a peaceful demonstration or vigil that you would like to announce to the public, send the details to "Coast & Country" P.O. Box 353, Carmel Valley, CA 93924.

ONE HUNDRED years from now this modest Spanish-style bungalow will probably be registered as a National Historic Place. We hope the Hentschel's proposed remodel and expansion will acknowledge the colorful story of the house and not render it unrecognizable to future historians. (Ray A. March photo.)

"Good Egg Award." The chamber couldn't decide on a single "Good Egg," so not one, but three people, were presented the award at the banquet held at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort.

This year's "Good Eggs," Dean Diaz, Geri Foote and Gene Erner were "extra-large, grade AAA." All three have donated countless hours of service to valley residents. Former "Good Eggs" include Bob Heald, Debbie Saxton, Karin Strasser Kauffman, Will Faye, Roger Williams and Chuck McKay.

Highlights of the evening included: President Dr. Steve Austin handing over the gavel to new president Vivian Miller and Shim La Goy, golf pro at Rancho Canada, presenting the chamber with a check for $6,000 from the "Good Egg" golf tournament, held in December.

Former "Good Egg" recipient Nick Lombardo generously donated the green fees, golf carts and prizes for the "Good Egg" Tournament, and then surprised everyone at the dinner-dance when it was announced he had picked up the tab for the entire evening.

They are the ones who make sure the cooking gets done the night of the big event. Arriving early, loaded down with bags of groceries, pots and pans and their favorite kitchen utensils, they go to work. If the celebrity chef is a cook, the assistant chef stands back, otherwise the assistant chef is the one who makes it all happen.

The Bill Stone Art Scholarship

WHEN THE Carmel High School band presented their spectacular winter concert this past November, they dedicated the event to retired music teacher John Farr and the new scholarship created in his name.

At the same time, few people realized that a companion fund was in its conception in the art department. The art scholarship was started as a result of the music concert and is still in its cradle. But Carmel High art teacher Diane Ericson wants the fund to be a "yearly, ongoing thing" that will be awarded annually to a talented CHS student in the name of Bill Stone, a longtime art teacher at CHS.

Bill Stone taught art at Carmel High for 22 years. When he retired five years ago, he left behind a lot of fond memories and good friends. Doris Weakland, the vice-principal's secretary, describes him as a man who not only had a "wonderful sense of humor," but a talent for getting kids to see beyond their limitations.

"Whenever he put his students projects up on the bulletin board," she says, "we were amazed that he could get so much from the kids."

Mr. Stone had a special rapport with students that is found only in exceptional teachers. He could "make his students follow the rules of art and see how to do a project." He was respected and admired by the faculty as well as his students.

Jean Harnish has seen seven different principals since becoming the principal's secretary at Carmel High. Bill Stone, she says, "was a perfectly marvelous teacher...a very warm, funny and friendly man with a very positive, nurturing attitude toward students." He was "bright and energetic...full of mischievous energy." He was a special person who was "very happy and very creative."

Outside of the classroom, Mr. Stone is a successful artist in his own right with a specialty in watercolors. Nowadays his work is exhibited in a Carmel art gallery and he's the president of the Monterey Peninsula Art Association. He usually paints landscapes, but has done seascapes of New England. He's active in the Presbyterian Church of Carmel and sings in its choir. He and his wife have three children and live in Carmel. Jean Harnish has a Bill Stone drawing in her sunny office. "His style," she says, "is outrageous...he is so very distinctive that you can just pick his work out."

The Bill Stone art scholarship is just beginning. A lovely poster created by Carmel High student Aaron Schwartz in celebration of the 50th Anniversary is for sale and the proceeds will be used for the scholarship. The gesture is appropriate: Stone is still fondly remembered at the high school. Five years after his retirement Jean Harnish agrees, "I think a lot of people love him around here," she says. "I sure do."

For more information on the scholarship fund, please contact Diane Ericson at Carmel High School at 624-1821.

THIS & THAT

By Florence Mason

"I'm just moving down the street"

KAY SAID, "It's going to be fun!" I suggested it might also be hard work. She agreed, and said: "For me, that's part of its appeal. It will keep me going and I expect that it will always be different."

We were discussing her new job with the City of Carmel. When Kay Mathis came to Carmel she became administrative assistant for two departments — Public Works and Forest and Beach. Yesterday was her first full day on the job in a similar capacity at Sunset Center, following the retirement of Marion Engstrom.

Like so many other committed Carmelites, Kay first visited Carmel as a tourist. Her daughter Melinda said something like "It's great here — good food and it's so pretty. Why don't you look for a job here?" That's just what Kay did, answering the city's add in the Pine Cone. She had been away from California for 16 years, so it was like coming home. And from her experience working for the City of Colorado Springs, she knew she liked working for a city administration.

Kay told Jerry Pullen, Carmel's personnel director, that she would be especially interested in either personnel or the cultural center if a position were to open. "And lo and behold, it did!" Kay went on to say that her new job "combines the best. I'm at home here, love working for the city. It's the icing on the cake to work in an environment I find so satisfying."

She has always been interested in music, the performing arts and other cultural activities. That's reflected, too, in the interests of daughter Melinda (with whom she shares her home), and son Christopher, who lives with his wife in Colorado. Melinda is a dancer and singer. Christopher is a realtor who is also a musician.

Among the pleasures Kay looks forward to is working with the City's new cultural director, Brian Donaghue. "He's a delight! A wonderful combination of creative and artistic abilities, with a solid base." The appreciation is mutual; Brian says: "Kay is delightful and very bright, with good office management skills."

In her spare time, Kay will continue to enjoy "as many live performances as possible, especially musicals." She also enjoys aerobics, and walking. And she is a real cat fancier — just ask "Butch" or "Sundance."

Kay Mathis also feels that she is not leaving the fine people she has been working with for the last two years. "The people in these departments are more mobile, they are out and about," she said with her charming smile. "So I'll still be seeing them. I'm just moving down the street."

DEFINITION OF optimism on the Central Coast: when there is a slight chance of rain" and your morning paper arrives in a plastic wrapper.

PVERHEARD on the beach walk: One man, dressed in a golf sweater, to another, similarly attired: "We don't care if they have the g-- d--- golf tournament or not. We can't park anywhere and we can't play golf."

GOING THROUGH some old books I came across my mother's cookbook, vintage somewhere in the 1920s. One recipe specified: "one pound, or 10 cents worth, of hamburger."

SPLENDID SENIOR

When I set out to interview Mabel Landaker, I expected to write about her achievements as an artist. And I will. But first: after spending about an hour with her, I felt uplifted. Lifted out of my ordinary self, cheered, delighted with the day and whatever else it might hold. At 88, Mabel shares her charm, her spirit and her talent generously.

It would be impressive at any age to have your own show of artworks in such a prestigious gallery as that of the Carmel Art Association; to do so when you are nearing 90 is awesome. Mabel's recent show was of her collages — 40 of them. Many were sold; one will be featured in the Art Association's 1992 calendar.

"My doing collages was a surprise to everyone," Mabel said, with a mischievous smile. "I had always been an oil painter; I had a show of my oils here about 18 years ago. This was just fun." Oil painting has become more difficult for her because she moved from a large home and studio to the smaller environs of Norton Court, the Carmel Foundation's newest senior complex.

Seeing the colorful coming together of materials, leaves and paper, I asked if the design for the collages is planned. "No," she said, "they just happen." She was influenced by miniature collages by Kurt Schwitters that she saw in Germany in 1958.

It is typical of Mabel Landaker that when her recent exhibition "shook a lot of people up," it was heartwarming for her. Her modesty is genuine. I asked about the connection between her earlier oils and these collages and she said that painting in oil had helped her develop a sense of composition — "what reads right."

All this began in Mabel Landaker's youth. "I've always been interested in art," she told me. When she was only 17 her personal life and her artistic life came together in the person of Harold Landaker. The couple met while both were attending the Chicago Art Institute. A life that might seem glamorous but was also not an easy one, followed.

The Landakers traveled for 13 years throughout the Midwest and Texas with a show that later became the Clyde Beatty circus. Together, they painted banners, show fronts, panels, and merry-go-round horses. Those years still influence Mabel, as seen in her oil paintings of children and carousels. They are delicate, lovely, evocative. Those years also account for one big regret that Mabel still has: during the Depression, when they themselves were just getting by, she wishes she had had her sketchbooks with her so she could have recorded the faces and scenes of that period. "Our lives, from tents to trailers, were a pioneer story in their own way," she muses.

Along the way, Harold and Mabel had two sons, Harold (Hal) and Walter. Now there are six grandchildren and five great grandchildren, all of whom are carrying on the artistic inclinations of their parents in one way or another. (One grandson has won two Oscars for achievement in motion picture sound.)

Harold and Mabel were very close — "like one," and when he died it was difficult for her to stay in the family home. That led to several attempts to find a new home, a new environment. These attempts ended only when she fulfilled her life's dream and came to live in Carmel. Although she had some misgivings about settling into a senior complex, Mabel is clearly very happy with her present surroundings in Norton Court. Her eyes light up in her lovely, virtually unlined face when she says: "It's wonderful here! Some of us are working, all are independent. No one here is dragging around."

Mable showed me an antique dental cabinet she used to hold painting supplies. And a packet of old European travel tickets that may eventually find their way into collages. Past and present come together for her in her art. Also, "I forget about any physical problems I might have when I start creating a picture," she said.

I am running out of space without even having told you that Mabel Landaker can still take shorthand and type, skills she used "when times were difficult," and that she has been an organist. When I was leaving, she commented again that she didn't know why people would be interested in reading about her. But she had answered that for herself when relating that younger members of the Art Association and younger friends said she inspired them to believe that they, too, could do something wonderful as they grew older.

There was a new spring in my own steps as I walked down Dolores Street, just thinking about Mabel Landaker, and still seeing the oils and the collages — colorful, spirited — in my own mind's eye.

Thank you Mabel.

DORIS DAY'S BEST FRIENDS

By Doris Day

Feline Feeding Tips

AS PROMISED, this week I'm going to share some information about feeding and nutrition for our feline friends.

During the past few years the nutrition of cats has received considerable attention. Certain large cat food manufacturers have conducted extensive research to establish complete, nutritious diets that require no supplementation.

Although federal law requires cat food manufacturers to provide a listing of ingredients in their products, the labels really don't contain enough information for you to comparison-shop. It's best to buy name brands from well-known manufacturers and stay away from generic or "plain wrap" varieties. When choosing a product, be sure to look for the words "complete, balanced, perfect, or scientific" on the label. That will tell you that the food meets all the daily protein, fat, vitamin and mineral requirements for your cat.

A complete, high-quality kibble can be important to your cat's diet. It is abrasive and good for teeth and gums. One possible disadvantage of dry food is that it may make your cat susceptible to feline urologic syndrome (FUS). Dry food has a low water content and when fed exclusively it may ultimately lead to the formation of a urethral plug, a potentially serious condition. The amount of ash (magnesium and phosphorus) your cat takes in each day could also be a factor, so if your cat suffers from this condition your veterinarian will prescribe a proper diet.

If you have a normal, healthy cat feed a complete kibble to be sure your cat's nutritional needs are being met, then add some variety to the diet. (By the way, some cats will not eat kibble and in that case, find a complete canned food.) In general, cats prefer meat and they like it at body temperature, rather than hot or cold. Last week I explained how I boil chicken and ground turkey for my dogs, and I give that to my cats, along with fresh cooked chicken livers. The turkey broth is fatty so before you strain it off for your dog, add some to your cat's meal since they require more fat than dogs.

Cats adore fish, of course, and when I go out to dinner I save half of my seafood meals for my cats. I always go home with a big "kitty bag." My cats also love canned tuna and mackerel, and baby food is a special treat — the pureed "second foods" type in chicken or turkey flavor with no added vegetables, just the meat. Cooked vegetables, cottage cheese and grated cheese can all be special treats and add some interest to your cat's diet.

Many cats enjoy milk but some are unable to handle it because they are deficient in lactase, an enzyme that helps digest milk sugars. The unabsorbed sugar causes a loose stool, so give small amounts of room temperature milk to your kitten or cat at first and see how it reacts. I like to use canned milk with a small amount of hot water added. It's rich and they enjoy it. Don't let the milk sit out for more than 2 hours because of the danger of spoiling. (That goes for canned food too).

Give your cat something to chew on once or twice a week. This promotes good oral hygiene. Usually a cat can be encouraged to chew on a large raw knuckle bone, especially if a little meat is left on. A cooked knuckle bone will splinter as easily as brittle-type bones (like chicken or rib), so be sure it's raw.

If you are lucky enough to be owned by a cat, you know that they can be finicky eaters. Try to find at least two nutritionally complete products and supplement as I've suggested. Just as you shop for yourself, be aware of label information.

If your cat suffers from FUS, watch the magnesium content or use a product recommended by your veterinarian. Most importantly, be moderate in feeding your cat. I feed mine twice a day and try to make their diet as interesting as possible without overfeeding. A "fat cat" funs the risk of many health problems, just like humans, so be kind to your kitty by feeding the right amounts of wholesome, nutritious foods.

INTERESTED IN adopting a feline friend? The Doris Day Pet Foundation does not board cats because we must use kennel facilities. Unlike dogs, cats cannot be taken out and exercised; they must remain in cages and we don't believe in doing that. However, we do work with a "cat lady," assisting with rescuing and placement, and her cats are free to roam safely indoors. Since she does not have her own foundation, she charges a small fee to cover her expenses.

CYC NOTES

Free food!

NOW THAT we have your attention, in honor of the 49ers making their third consecutive trip to the Super Bowl, the Carmel Youth Center is having a Super Bowl party for kids only.

The game will be on our 60-inch television screen. There will be free popcorn, hotdogs, pizza, and beer on tap — that's root beer. The party starts at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 27, with kickoff at 3 p.m.

The day before, on Saturday, Jan. 26, we are having our first big event of the year. We will be having a really big show featuring our world famous clown. The show will include acrobatics, dance, magic and lots more. Come by and check our miniature version of a circus without the elephants. It seems Carmel has an ordinance against elephants inside the city limits, talk about picky.

The show will start at noon and runs for an hour. The ticket prices are $5 for adults and $4 for kids. All proceeds go to the Carmel Youth Center. Come by with your kids and make a day out of it. If you have never been to the center, we have video games, pinball, pool tables, foosball, ping pong, and the aforementioned big screen TV. Our first dance of the year will be in February, we'll keep you posted. (Hi Tina.)

We have had a lot of people stopping by to check out our weight room. Once people see it they are amazed at how well equipped our weight room is. Besides having the most up-to-date equipment, we have one of the top fitness trainers in all of California. Don Covington is a nationally certified fitness and weight training instructor and he offers his expertise and knowledge to help anyone become more fit or improve themselves in their competition or sport. Boys and girls aged 13 to 21 can use the weight room at a small fee of $10 a month.

With the lack of emphasis on physical education in our schools now, this is one of the best places on the peninsula for our children to spend their free time. The weight room is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 3 to 7 p.m. and Saturday's noon to 2 p.m.

The Carmel Youth Center is open seven days a week. For any information call 624-3285 or stop by at Fourth and Torres right next to the police station. The Carmel Youth Center is a non-profit organization and any donations are greatly appreciated.

that Francis "Sonny" Rianda of Gonzales had been elected president of the 1991 Monterey County Fair Board of Directors. Rianda is the owner/manager of Coastal Ford Tractor in Salinas and is serving his second four-year term as a board member. Miguel Errea of San Ardo will take the reins as vice-president. Errea raises cattle in San Ardo and is in his first term.

The nine board members of the Seventh District Agricultural Association (also known as the Monterey County Fair), are appointed by the Governor. Board members are not paid for this service, and, along with the annual election of president and vice-president, their responsibilities include setting policy for the district. The board meets on the third Tuesday of each month.

The December meeting also included a discussion about the Junior Livestock Department and it was noted that FFA Chapter Advisors and 4-H Leaders are planning their 1991 calendars in anticipation of participating in the fair.

COLDWELL BANKER OFFICES COLLECT RECORD NUMBER OF TOYS FOR TOTS

collected a record 113 barrels full of toys during this years' Toys for Tots campaign drive.

The Toys for Tots collection drive, which ran from Nov. 26 through Dec. 21, was the most successful campaign to date according to Larry Knapp, president of Coldwell Banker Northwest Regional Operations.

"Our offices collected approximately 5,989 toys during this drive," said Knapp. "We've been doing this for seven years and this is absolutely the most we've ever collected."

Barrels are placed in all of the Northern California Coldwell Banker Residential Real Estate offices. The Marine Corps gathers the barrels and distributes the toys to local charitable organizations which, in turn, give them to needy children throughout the area.

Toys for Tots, founded in 1947, is a nationwide campaign sponsored by the United States Marine Corps. Coldwell Banker is the only national residential real estate company to endorse the campaign.

The Golden Years

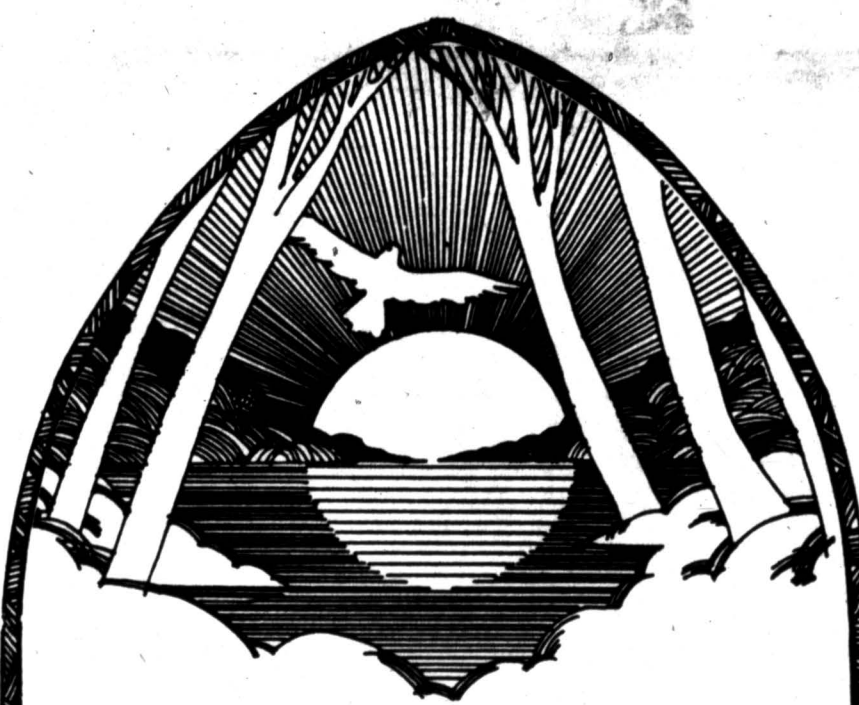

By Myles Williams

There are three categories of people who should know the basics of Medicare coverage: Men and women over age 65, those approaching 65, and their children. Medicare is the federal health insurance program for people 65 and over and for certain disabled people. There are two parts to Medicare: Hospital insurance, called Part A, helps pay for some hospitalization costs, some care in a skilled nursing facility, home health care and hospice care. Most people do not have to pay anything for Part A coverage. Medical insurance, called Part B, requires the individual to pay premiums. It covers doctors' services, outpatient hospital services, durable medical equipment and several other medical services and supplies. Although people eligible for Medicare must pay premiums for Part B, and pay deductibles and "co-insurance" for both A and B, Medicare coverage enables many older people to get benefits of doctor, hospital and skilled nursing care they could not otherwise afford.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Help Us to Smile

From the Jan., 20, 1983
Carmel Pine Cone

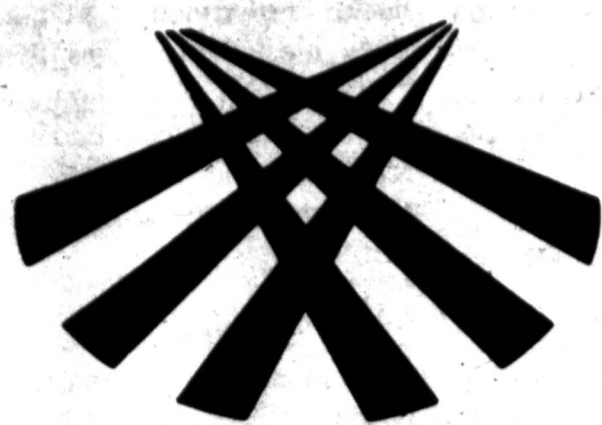

In Ireland, Daniel O'Connell, who died in 1847, is still held in great esteem as the "liberator," as a politician, orator and great wit. He was born in Cahirciveen County Kerry in 1775 and he was an ancestor of Monsignor Michael O'Connell of Carmel Mission, a charter member of the Rotary Club.

Daniel O'Connell had charisma. He was able to win over his political enemies in the British House of Parliament by his charm. He once described an adversary as having a smile as cold as the glint of winter sun on the leaden nameplate of a coffin.

We all have met men who are surly, who scowl through life, who wear an expression like a gray mask with a built-in frown. In this new year of 1983 we are going to encounter trials, tribulations and sorrows. However, we can handle them if we resolve to accept them and come to terms with them in the spirit of optimism and joyful hope of a Daniel O'Connell.

Oh Lord, every time we decide to throw a live hand grenade of anger or sarcasm at a neighbor, remind us that both of us can be blown up by the blast. Oh Lord, help us to smile as we forgive and forget; it's good strategy, and it's good religion.

The granite bridge built across the River Liffey in the heart of Dublin is named in honor of the witty liberator, Daniel O'Connell. No one ever remembers the name of his glum and morbid enemy. I wonder why? Amen.

Sea-scoured jade is the source of his art

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE SEA is the primary sculptor of Don Wobber's designs. Heeding nature's cues, his job is more of sculptor's apprentice. In his Pacific Grove studio, Wobber does not create so much as refine the swirls and grooves born of centuries of sea action on stone.

Wobber's preferred medium: nephrite — the jade-green stone in which Monterey County abounds.

"Nephrite is the jade of Old China," exclaims Wobber, who says he is 63 "but I don't feel it."

'You cannot chip the jade like marble. If you hit it with a hammer, the hammer would bounce through the air.'

His shirt is a rich jade-green. A necklace of jade dangles from his neck.

"It's a sort of mystical stone," Wobber asserts. In his book, Jade Beneath the Sea — A Diving Adventure, Wobber notes that "Nephrite is considered the most durable of rocks, due to the fibrous, asbestos-like microstructure of its crystals."

The stone is so tough that he sculpts with diamond-edged tools.

"You cannot chip the jade like marble. If you hit it with a hammer, the hammer would bounce through the air," he says.

As it is in nature, Wobber's sculptures are abstracts.

"I see the form in the rock and bring out what's already there," the artist explains.

"Born of the Sea" is an egg-shaped piece. In a larger, 300-pound stone, he "sees" and defines a recumbent mermaid. Now on display at the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery, the mermaid bears a sign — "Please Touch." His other abstract works suggest angel's wings, even a translucent "Holy Grail."

Wobber does not select his materials from any commercial quarry. He discovers it the hard way, in the waters of Jade Cove, 64 coast-gripping miles south of Carmel.

"It takes me one and a half to two hours to get to Jade Cove. I usually dive at first light, from 6 to 8 a.m. I quit when it's too dark to dive. I have to carry my gear up and down this 180-foot cliff. I use four tanks (of air) a day."

Wobber likens his artistic obsession to that of Sisyphus, the mythological figure who pushes the same stone up a mountain, only to see it roll back down each day.

"What would be hell to someone else is perfect joy to me," he asserts. "I go down to Jade Cove an average of once a week, depending on the water. When it's calm, I'm there."

IN A 1987 article in National Geographic magazine, Wobber was cited as "among the best" of the world's contemporary jade sculptors.

He first gained both fame and notoriety in the rock-hunting world when he and friends retrieved a 9,000-pound jade boulder from the South Coast cove. That was in 1971, and the boulder, which they dubbed "The Nephripod," was valued at $180,000.

The State of California laid claim to the record-setting boulder. It was one-and-a-half years after Wobber and his compatriots floated the "Nephripod" ashore at Jade Cove that they received clear title to it. It now rests in the Oakland Museum.

"Jade Cove is one of the only spots in the world I know of where you can find jade underwater. It's usually found in streams or on land," the artist explains. "It's a metamorphic rock, subject to change. It's found in serpentine, which is the California state stone."

Wobber sculpts in a barnlike studio off his Pacific Grove home, which he shares with wife Donna. His workplace will be open to the public as part of this year's "Open Studio Tour."

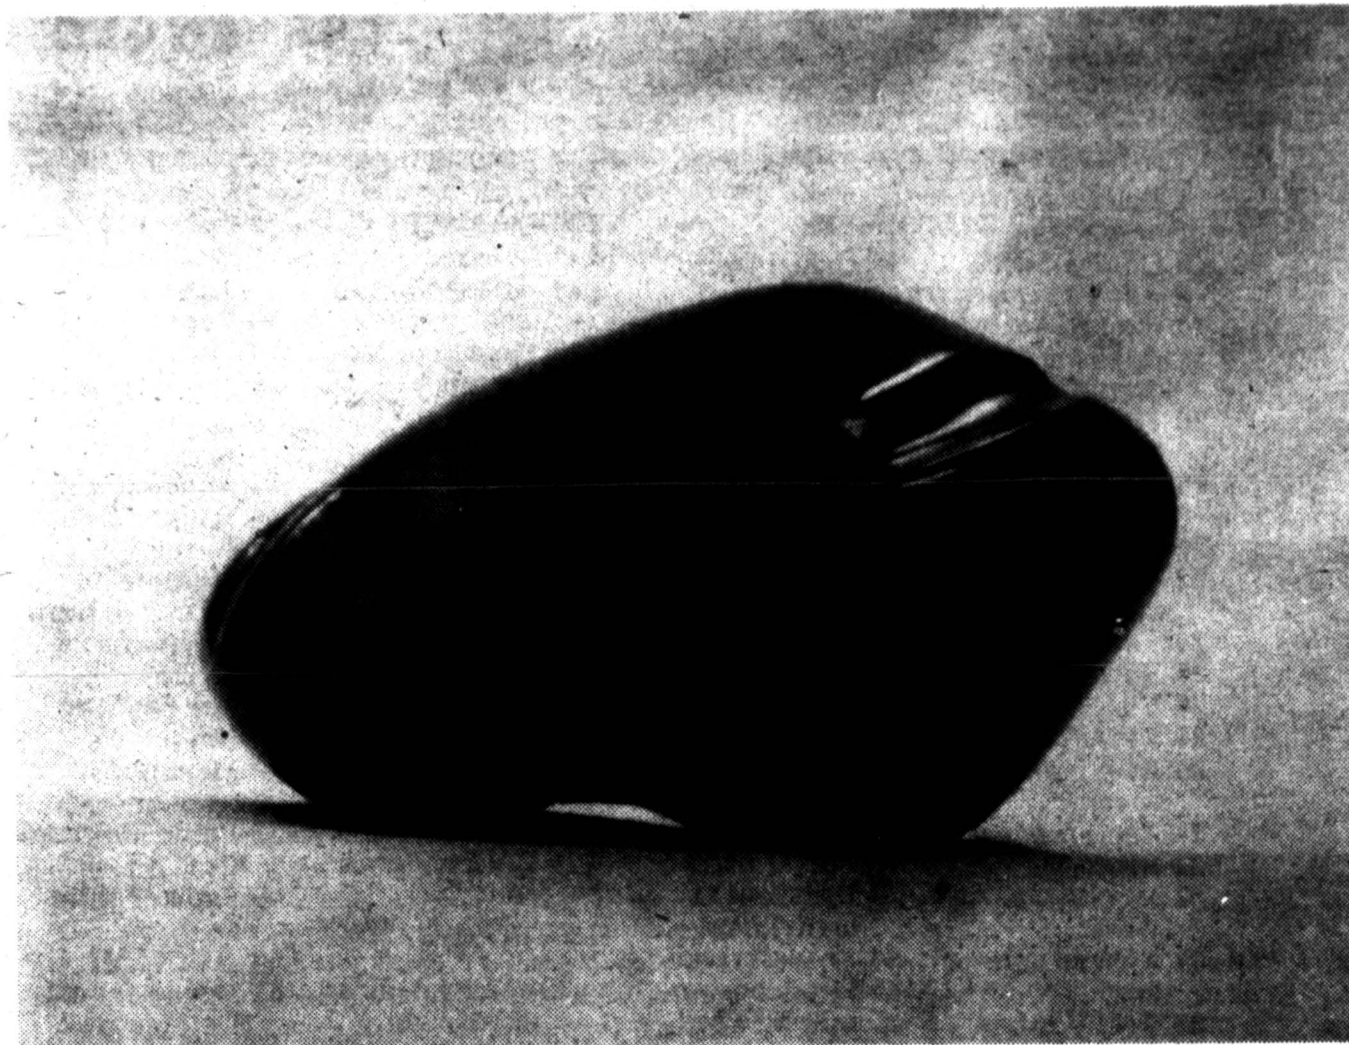

"I've always wanted to live close to the ocean. I migrated from San Francisco down to this peninsula," he says.

Confronting a huge, rough, jade boulder, Wobber explains that "I work with the ridge-line because in the ocean the sand pelts the rock from two different sides. It creates a natural line. Part of my carving derives from the fact that I hate to cut the rocks. I follow the forms. I've picked out the forms of nature."

Wobber's sculptures can be viewed through the end of January at the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery, where they are teamed with photographs by Robert Almeida.

In June, Wobber will have a one-man show at the Ledbetter Gallery in downtown Carmel.

Of his art, Wobber states, "It's my bliss, as Joseph Campbell would say. It's what I'm here on this earth to do."

ORIGINAL SCULPTOR of Don Wobber's jade creations is the sea. He refines the images produced by natural wave action. This "Mollusc Form" is among his sculptures that can be viewed through Jan. 31 in the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery. (Steve Hoffer photograph).

Lauded Soviet pianist makes peninsula concert debut

ON SUNDAY, Jan. 20, at 4 p.m. the Keyboard Artist Series will present the Soviet pianist, Vladimir Viardo, in a recital at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Vladimir Viardo made headlines in 1988 as a living example of glasnost and perestroika when he asked for and received permission from the Soviet authorities to remain in the United States in order to pursue his concert career.

In his Carmel recital he will perform Prokofiev's Visions Fugitives, Shostakovich's Sonata No. 2 in B Minor, Medtner's Sonata in A Minor, and end with Two Dances and the Sonata No. 3 in F-sharp minor by Scriabin.

A limited number of tickets for the event are available and can be purchased at Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey (649-5561) or at the box office at Sunset Center on the afternoon of the performance. For further information, please call Keyboard Artist Series at 624-7971.

COMPOSITIONS BY Prokofiev, Shostakovich, Medtner and Scriabin will be performed by Soviet pianist Vladimir Viardo on Sunday, Jan. 20. The Keyboard Artist Series presents the recital, which begin at 4 p.m. in Sunset Theater, Carmel. For ticket information, call 624-7971.

Travel film shows viewers Greece 'From Apollo to Zorba'

THE FIRST offering of the new year from the World Traveler Film Series is Greece: Apollo to Zorba. The new travel-film will be narrated in person by Lynn and Julie Bramkamp. A presentation of the Sunset Community and Cultural Center and City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, the film will be screened at both 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18.

Spanning 4,000 years of history, the Bramkamp's film takes the audience from the wilds of northwest Greece, near the Albanian border, to the stark towers of the once pirate infested Mani country. To show the remarkable variation of island life, the filmmakers visited at least one of each of Greece's six island groups, for a total of 16 islands. The film features spectacular scenery, remote mountain villages and traditional handicrafts. Pottery, weaving, embroidery, wood carving and stone sculpture are crafts that have persisted since the time of Homer.

The Bramkamp's film captures the astonishing variety of Greece — the old gods; the cradle of democracy and western civilization; the coming of the crusaders, the Venetians and the Turks; agriculture ranging from tobacco to bananas, and modern Greece — the summer playground of Europe.

A Northern California native, Lynn Bram-kamp's interest in travel began with books and continued with many travel adventures with his uncle in the western United States. His wife, Julie, was originally from Sioux Falls, South Dakota. They are graduates of Stanford University, where they met. The Bramkamps have traveled widely and their interest in history and the way people live, as well as their background in journalism and education, is reflected in their travel-films and lectures.

Admission for the film showing is $5 and seats are reserved. The Sunset Center Theater is located in Carmel on San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue. For further information call 624-3996.

PACIFIC GROVE sculptor Don Wobber travels to Jade Cove at least once a week to dive for the raw materials necessary to his art. He collects jade the hard way. Here he carries a 110-pound jade nodule up the cliffs of the South Coast cove.

JAZZ TIDES

Chatting with the man

EXCLUSIVE: History-rich producer Orrin Keepnews began the work nearly four decades ago as co-founder and creative head of that legendary Riverside label. He was the first to produce Bill Evans and Wes Montgomery. Other studio associates — Thelonius Monk, Sonny Rollins, Cannonball Adderly, McCoy Tyner, Bobby Hutcherson, Kronos Quartet.

Jazz photographer Will Wallace and I spent part of a recent Sunday afternoon at the Keepnews flat in San Francisco, chatting with the man about his past and present and future. Then the flu bug got me; a great many notes await transcription. For now...

"I love semantics," the 67-year-old Keepnews said. "I'm fascinated by younger musicians, since the early '80s, calling bebop 'the tradition.' In the span of my career, bebop has gone from the cutting edge to The Tradition. This's a rare thing: the younger generation having the proper respect for what preceded them. They're not at war with the past."

He credited "active older musicians who paid attention to the younger ones, Art Blakely certainly represented a cross-pollination of jazz generations."

Today, Keepnews said, the Landmark label offers him complete creative freedom. "It's a one-person operation by design. I make the decisions and do what I think needs doing."

Landmark's under the Fantasy umbrella (Berkeley). This theme of cross-pollination comes through new releases. The first leadership album of brilliant young alto saxist Vincent Herring will hit the shops this month. Trumpet adept Wallace Roney and pianist Mulgrew Miller were on the session as well.

Keepnews first heard Herring in cornet master Nat Adderly's present band. Nat also signed with Landmark; his first album under this contract was announced for March. With pianist Rob Bargar, Jimmy Cobb at the drums, Herring, plus my favorite bass player. That's Walter Booker, who always combines great energy and tuneful refined taste. (Walter was part of the great Adderly Quintet when brothers Nat and Cannonball did their finest work together.)

"One problem," Keepnews chuckled, "is that younger players want to hear stories about Monk and Cannonball and Wes. Of course, we have great fun. I must always remember that there's a record to get out."

More about Orrin Keepnews in the near future. Much more.

NEW YORK alto saxist Virginia Mayhew was in Carmel Highlands visiting her grandmother. She dropped off the CD featuring herself and Manhattan trumpeter Rebecca Franks (out of Aptos High) as quintet co-leaders. The item had just been sent by an Italian label — Philology — and it's a fine debut.

This may be a future collector's item. Virginia said she and Rebecca agreed to pursue separate directions. It's unlikely that this two-woman front line will undertake other recording projects together.

The Mayhew/Franks group made countless friends at the last Monterey Jazz Festival. The album shows why — it's an intelligent mix of standards and original writing and solid pieces from The Tradition. Bird, Horace Silver, Franks, Jerome Kern, Johnny Green, Cole Porter.

While studying in the New School Jazz Program, Virginia was awarded the first Zoot Sims Memorial Scholarship. It's my guess that the years will name her a player of lasting impact. Pianist Larry Goldings (who played so beautifully behind alto saxist Christopher Hollyday during MJF 1990) appears on five cuts. The CD's available at Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard.

Virginia said she has been doing some jobs for Toshiko Akiyoshi. She'll undertake an Italian tour in March — and Philology plans a second album with her new quartet.

ONE LIKES to believe that our jazz musicians respect one another's efforts and turfs. Obviously this isn't always the case.

Word's out on the street that another leader tried to rip off those jam sessions fronted by bassist Norm Ross at The Firehouse. The would-be raider needs to know that such tactics do surface and become part of local memory.

Venue owners Anne Batchelder and Ken Bales reportedly told Ross the story and thus gave a solid vote of confidence. Wise, decent move. The jams work very well because Norm's generous and genuinely interested in celebrating the music rather than his authority.

Everyone gets a shot at calling tunes. "I like an atmosphere that's relaxed and happy," Norm says.

He has begun playing keyboards too. If you haven't checked out that scene, please do. Thursday and Saturday nights.

Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz offers vibist Bobby Hutcherson and friends on Monday night (1/21). Smith Dobson at the piano, bassist Jeff Chambers, extraordinary drummer Eddie Marshall. Eight o'clock kick and $12 per. Center Stage Ticketing.

Vocalist Barbara Linn swings there on Friday evening (1/18). Same start time. Tickets ($5 apiece) at the door only.

The Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club has singer Gail Dobson on Thursday night (1/17). Others: Mamou (1/18-19), TV sports (1/20-21), Jack and Ed Show (1/22), Alan Berman (1/23).

Don't miss trumpeter Ron Coolidge on Tuesday evenings at Shanty Malone's (Valley Hills Center). His unit makes much room for superb drummer John Goldsmith. Drummer Dottie Dodgion leads another worthwhile group (Thursdays through Saturdays). Papa Jake on Sunday nights.

Nick Williams continues his Third Thursday Jazz Series (1/17) in the Vista Lobos Room of Carmel's Vista Lobos Park. Call 626-9151 for the lineup and reservations.

Bill LePine Quartet left Monterey Beach Hotel and already negotiated another long-term gig. Hotel manager Fred Mayo recently said that spot aimed to become the jazz hub for this peninsula. Attempts to contact him about future bookings have been fruitless. I'll keep trying.

Recommended night sounds — Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra at Mission Ranch Barn (Mondays), pianists Ace Hill and Bobby Phillips (Doubletree Lounge and Quail Lodge respectively), Monica Harle Trio at Highlands Inn (Fridays and Saturdays), Brazilian percussionist Helcio Millito with pianist Weber Drummond at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge (Wednesdays through Sundays).

DIAL DATA: KUSP-FM now offers Radio Kronos. The one-hour segments featuring the aforementioned Kronos Quartet run at 11 o'clock Tuesday mornings as part of Kenny Hill's classical show. Series distributed by American Public Radio.

This production puts forth music not yet available via tape or disc. Kronos members and various composers comment on works. Those composers include John Zorn, Steve Lacy, Morton Feldman, Astor Piazzolla, Hamza El Din, Jack Brody, Jin Hi Kim, Dumi Maraine.

At four o'clock Friday afternoon (1/18), Johnny Adams of KRML Jazz Radio will present an exclusive conversation with Doris Day about her pet foundation and movie work of the near future. Johnny will also play some of Miss Day's records. ("I'll be in her next film," Adams reveals.) KRML's at 1410 AM.

PRODUCER Creed Taylor's old CTI label has been revived with the help of a Japanese conglomerate called Saison Group. First project was announced as an audio-visual piece entitled Rhythmstick with Dizzy Gillespie, Flora Purim, Art Farmer, Tito Puente, Phil Woods.

During the 1970s, CTI issued lush studio sessions that spotlighted such artists as Chick Corea, Ray Charles, Freddie Hubbard, Hubert Laws, Grover Washington Jr., Stanley Turrentine, Bob James.

The Angeles Quartet; Monterey County Symphony: quality presentations

THE ANGELES Quartet opened the new year for the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula on Jan. 11 in Carmel's Sunset Theater and indeed it was a quality event. The group is a young one, having made its professional debut in July, 1989, but musically it is sophisticated well beyond its years.

Kathleen Lenski and Roger Willkie, violins; Brian Dembow, viola and Stephen Erdody, cello presented a performance which was thoughtful, mature and tasteful, displaying a rapport full of musical intelligence to match their high technical endowments. Also, their intonation was sheer perfection, an attribute which is not always a given in many a more established and highly regarded string quartet. I will restrain myself and not name names.

Opening with the Beethoven String Quartet in D Major, Op. 18, No. 3, a work which stems directly from the tradition of Haydn and Mozart, they played with fluidity and grace. The emphasis was on singing tone and rounded phrasing. In this music, the first violin is the leader, but requires firm support from its collaborators. Kathleen Lenski played with refined Mozartean grace and her concept was very well shaped.

The flowing Andante also featured a singing violin tone over a mellow sounding and carefully balanced ensemble. A syncopated section was vividly underlined and the overall results were elegant, sensitive and full of quiet virtuosity.

The infectious rhythms and gentle humor in the third movement were outlined gracefully and the concluding Presto was lighthearted and perfectly coordinated. Its Rossinian comic opera wit was played with great polish and its merry chase, pursued with lightness and well wrought dynamics, sparkled.

Leos Janacek's Quartet No. 1 (Kreutzer) was inspired by a Tolstoy story of love and tragedy. The music echoes this scenario very clearly and called for quite different and contrasting facets of the Angeles Quartet's capabilities. Here one is aware of tension and excitement rather than grace and elegance. The brief episodic construction is almost vocally communicative and speaks declaratively.

The interpretation was knowledgeable and the performance masterful in its intensity and air of concentration. The second movement was a modern Bohemian scherzo tune, but with meaningful pauses and movingly painful contrasting interpolations. It was poignantly expressive. This pattern was also apparent in the last two movements and the mature artistry of the conception was compelling for this listener.

After the intermission, Brahms' String Quartet in B Flat Major, Op. 67, was heard. This sunny, dancing music was very much on the surface. The players treated it with sympathetic charm and deftness. Lenski's lovely playing gave flavor and lilt to the first movement. Then in the second one, she traces a quite Mendelssohnian theme with shining tenderness in a fine musical collaboration. The exquisite phrasing gave the music breadth and a large dimension.

Violist Brian Dembow was in full musical command of his instrument in the Allegretto which is a real plum of the viola repertoire. The tone was fine and in good proportion while having a near soloistic authority, most appropriate herein. The closing movement, a set of variations was pleasingly explored, though a more emphatic attack would have helped alleviate their rather bland quality and provided more weight and interest in its pages.

The concert was dedicated to the memory of Angie Machado, a beloved musical figure and a founding member of the Chamber Music Society.

THE ALL-RUSSIAN program Maestro Clark Suttle chose for the Monterey County Symphony to offer in King Hall Sunday afternoon simply went to prove my thesis that if you give listeners what they want and love, they will turn out in large numbers to support the event. So much for high-minded ideas of what an audience should come for.

There was hardly an empty seat in the hall and few people departed early, even though the program lasted well over two hours. The music, though familiar, melodic and dramatic, has been neglected lately. Perhaps it was too-too sinfully appealing, but once in a while it's nice to let down one's defenses and revel in those haunting melodies and exciting climaxes. That that is how the ticket holders felt was quite obvious from the enthusiasm of their applause at the close of each work.

The first of the three highly romantic, late 19th century pieces which made up the popular program was the Overture-Fantasy Romeo and Juliet by Tchaikovsky. Suttle was a careful craftsman as he began conducting, attending to precise attacks, chordal voicings and dynamic subtleties, but this music has an energy of its own that surmounts such an approach and while any bombast was studiously avoided, the stormy climaxes and great brass utterances kept one aware of the underlying turmoil the composer wanted to express. The orchestra sound was very well balanced, though rather patrician in the control maintained by the conductor.

Soviet pianist Alexander Slobodyanik was the soloist in the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 3 in D Minor, Op. 30. Dated 1909 it still embodies the great Russian melodic and romantic traditions. The concerto begins quietly and the soloist's gentle legato touch then, served to underline the contrast to his later thundering pyrotechnics. Rachmaninoff was one of the world's titanic piano virtuosos and he wrote this concerto for himself. He evidently wanted to put his enormous abilities on exhibit.

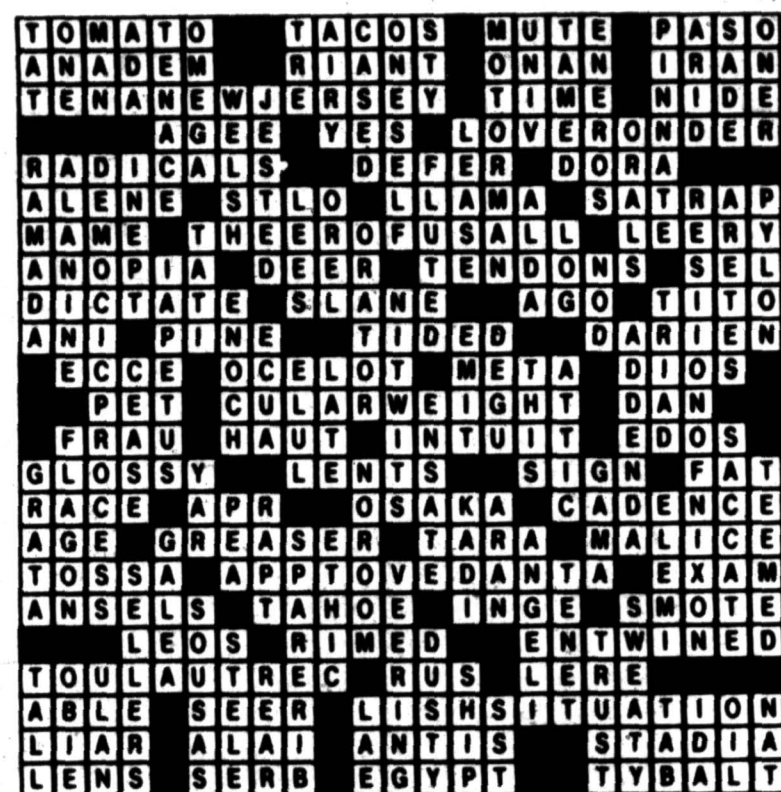

Slobodyanik also can do it all. He is strong, confident and immensely able. In the Largo, there was less refinement and at times the movement lost momentum, seeming to just ramble rather aimlessly along, but the third movement was brilliantly encompassed. The alternation of delicacy and pianistic fireworks was very well handled. The orchestra was outstanding and Suttle kept a firm hand on the reins. All the participants work very hard in this blockbuster opus and it was all masterfully done.

After the intermission another major work, Rimsky-Korsakov's Scheherazade was played. A genius in the field of orchestration, Rimsky created a display piece which is enchanting both melodically and in its tone colors. Many of the orchestra first desk players are featured as soloists and they were uniformly excellent, though concertmaster Diane Nicholieris must be accorded pride of place for her superior account of the many extended concerto-like solos she has to play.

This magnificently colorful oriental fairy-tale narrative and descriptive tone poem has surefire effectiveness and appeal and it has the wonderful ability to bring out the best in an orchestra. Certainly the performance was a delight. The players appeared to revel in their music. The first violins and the cellos (the two more exposed string sections) were mellow and cohesive all the way. The tone was rich and strong.

One could go on listing the delights in the music almost endlessly, so I won't. But, it is easy to understand why the audience wanted to be reunited with this aurally rewarding music. It positively glowed. This was a program impossible to duplicate. Too bad, because if it were, orchestras wouldn't have deficits.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joan Swartz Paonessa

Two actors triumph in 'Owl and the Pussycat'

TAKE ONE ACTRESS with an appealing malleable face, abundant energy, flawless concentration, an unerring sense of timing, i.e., a natural, in theatrical parlance. Add to this several years of assiduous work on craft and technique, and the result is the kind of near-perfect performance given by Michelle Savage as Doris W. at the New Wharf Theater.

Doris W., the lady of the evening who lives in the whirlwind of her emotions, and F. Sherman, the writer manque caught in the trap of his own intellect, form the entire cast of Bill Manhoff's 1960s comedy, The Owl and the Pussycat, the Frohman Academy and Forest Theater Guild's joint production at the Wharf.

Carrying a three-act play puts a great deal of responsibility on just two characters. An author must be certain that they are up to the task. Doris W. is a woman of considerable range and accessible humanity, while the F. Sherman character fares less well, being somewhat too stridently and one-dimensionally written until the third act, when he emerges as a more believable person.

James Brady does well within these limitations, and has some especially fine moments during the third act. Perhaps he and director Michael Cheak, who has a special way with small-cast ensemble-acting situations, can work on emotional levels and the subtlety which would inject Felix Sherman with more credibility during the pre-climatic scenes of the play.

Manhoff's work is brash and entertaining with flashes of true wit, and lots of the physical comedy which demonstrates Savage's gifts (watch for her hilarious bits with a radio, a whip and a thermometer)! Brady, too, is given scads of opportunities to react as the slouching, self-righteous prig who would change this fallen lady into his intellectual ideal in order to justify his attraction to her.

Despite its lively entertainment values, Pussycat is no fluffy, lightweight piece; much is said and implied about loneliness, self-esteem, self-acceptance and reality.

Technically, the show is just fine. Congratulations to Stage Manager Randy Rock and Assistant Stage Manager Joe Green for yeoman duty on all ancillary aspects of the production.

Rock handles the lighting and sound, while Mr. Green manages very well indeed that stumbling block of a Second Act, with its half-dozen scene changes in what seem like as many minutes! Praise is due for Savage, Brady and Cheak, too, for making those transitions as smoothly as they do! No credit is given in the program for costuming; Savage's duds are outrageous and amusing, Brady's appropriate to his state of mind.

This successful presentation marks the beginning of a new collaboration; we wish the Frohman Academy (Gloria Elber, Executive Director) continued good luck in future undertakings.

The Owl and the Pussycat plays through Feb. 17 at the New Wharf Theater in Monterey, Fridays and Saturdays at 9 p.m., Sundays at 7:30 p.m.

Krapp's Last Tape; I'm Herbert

Conrad Selvig will direct two Monterey Peninsula College

'I'm Herbert'

SANDY WILLIAMS and Len Parry star in Robert Anderson's comedy about old age, I'm Herbert. The production opens Thursday, Jan. 17 at Cherry Hall in Carmel, and continues through Jan. 27. For tickets, call 649-5561.

Players' productions at the Cherry Foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe in Carmel.

Len Parry will star in the one-man Samuel Beckett play, Krapp's Last Tape. Parry will join Sandy Williams in I'm Herbert, a short comedy by Robert Anderson.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, Jan. 17-27, with 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays.

Krapp's Last Tape is a monologue in which virtually nothing happens except that an old man listens to a tape he recorded 35 years before on his 39th birthday. The play's theme is the passage of time and the elusiveness of identity.

In I'm Herbert, Parry and Williams portray an elderly couple who are in their 70s when they marry. The laughs come as the couple continuously confuses each other with their previous spouses.

Tickets are available from Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

La Parisienne

A black comedy of 19th century morals framed within the story of a very proper, real-life Parisian matron forms the foundation for La Parisienne. The sly wit of playwright Henri Becque dissects bourgeois life in the 1890s, domestic and bureaucratic, without using a single unseemly word.

The Staff Players Repertory Company brings Becque's triumph to the stage of the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

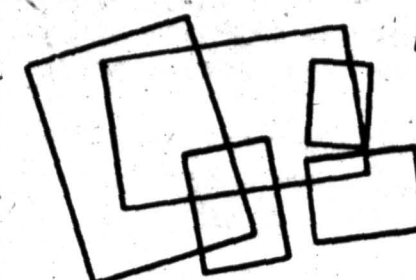

The cast includes Marlie Avant as Clotilde Du Mesnil, Alan Smith as M. Lafont, Jason Bond as Adolph Du Mesnil, Cynthia Womack as Adele and John Farmanesh as M. Simpson.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Feb. 9. Matinees are scheduled at 2:30 p.m. Sundays, Jan. 20, 27 and Feb. 3.

The Indoor Forest Theater stage is located under the main stage of Carmel's historic Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are recommended. Call the Staff Players at 624-1531 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

'La Parisienne' charms at Indoor Forest Theatre

LA PARISIENNE, a comedy of sexual manners by Henri Becque — the French playwright from the turn-of-the-century known as the "Father of French Dramatic Naturalism" — opened locally this past weekend at the Staff Players' Indoor Forest Theatre in Carmel.

This is a minor play by a minor playwright — deservedly so — but that does not mean it is a play of mere historic interest. Unlike so much of the frivolous French theater of his time, Becque worked hard to create real characters speaking believable dialogue in real situations.

In an age of dramatic giants like Ibsen, Strindberg and Shaw, Becque brought to his plays an honesty and integrity that also deserves respect.

Mme. Clotilde (Marie Avant), the bored but apparently proper wife of a Parisian economist, is trying to juggle simultaneously three men in her life — a dense husband, a jealous older lover and a foppish younger one.

The husband, M. Adolphe (Jason Bond), is preoccupied with attempts to obtain a high government position. The aging lover, M. Lafont (Alan Smith) is wracked with pained curiosity about where and in what manner Mme. Clotilde is spending unaccounted-for leisure time. (In another's arms, of course!) And M. Simpson (John Farmanesh), the younger lover and son of a lady friend of suspect reputation, is threatening to quit Paris for the country where his talents and charms attract more respect.

Not surprisingly, the focus of this play is almost entirely on the actions and emotions of Mme. Clotilde. In contrast to the two-dimensional, often pathetic males who surround her, she is lively, rounded and complex.

Ms. Avant has impressive tools to bring Mme. Clotilde to life. She is breathtakingly lovely in the three full period costumes in which costumer Loel Shuler dresses her. We see her listening intelligently and calculatingly to the self-revelations of the males who flutter about her. She possesses big, naughty eyes to reveal clearly what is going on inside. Repeatedly her looks straight out say more than a thousand well-chosen words.

She also gets most of the play's juiciest lines. "Men are chatter-boxes — clumsy and unstable," she says in a mocking reversal of the hoary definition by which males have for so long dismissed women.

"These men — how they hang on when you don't want them anymore," she murmurs, fed up with one of M. Lafont's whining requests for mercy.

"When a man has been intimate with a woman, she should be sacred to him," she sniffs in justification of her infidelities. One hauntingly poetic line softens somewhat her not-so-secret contempt for the male species, "There's a little bit of everything in a woman's tears."

Forgotten regrettably in the play's program but not by this critic's eye was the cameo role of Cynthia Womack's "Adele," Mme. Clotilde's maid. Limited to a few perfunctory lines, Ms. Womack delightfully undercuts her character's occupational subservience with sly, knowing expressions which suggest — except for the limitations of social class — another Mme. Clotilde in the making.

The major weakness of this play is the lack of depth in the male characters. We are served up in succession, a bore, a whiner and a fop. Seldom do we see around their edges hints of qualities that would make them more interesting.

Around the corners of Shakespeare's Macbeth, for example, (let's forget this Shake-speare nonsense) we get glimpses of a generosity of spirit that might, under other circumstances, have overcome the ambition that finally drives the Scottish thane on to tragedy. Behind Henry Higgins' misogyny, G.B. Shaw gives us hints of a playful gamesmanship that revels in the battle of the sexes. Not here.

As a result, competent actors like Bond, Smith and Farmanesh here seem trapped in the confines of their less than fully realized characters. Smith's M. Lafont is distressingly hangdog much of the time, though he does exhibit a glimmer of insight in one despairing comic line, "What a life we men lead — either we're bachelors or cuckolds."

Jason Bond, his mellifluous baritone as impressive as ever, employs facial expressions here which I found distracting and even bordering on the grotesque. And this fine performer has a habit of looking down in the middle of a speech, a mannerism which tends to undercut the impact of what he is saying. It needs to be corrected.

John Farmanesh, all self-centered absorption and bedroom eyes, effectively depicts a callow young lover many aging Lotharios might uncomfortably recognize as someone they once were themselves.

Director Marcia Hovick, as we have come to expect, fills the limited space of the Indoor Forest Theatre with focused, disciplined action and breathes life into the printed emotions and conflicts of another culture and another time.

Set design is by Norman Stottmeister. Lights are by Steve Disseldorp. Stage Manager is Gwyneth Hovick. The play runs through Feb. 9th.
